Takeaways

- 30 hospitals across 6 CBSAs
- Twin Cities: 21 of 30 hospitals
- Allina, M Health Fairview, Essentia in scope
- MN value-based care culture advantageous
- Rural hospitals face post-acute access challenges

Minnesota's TEAM context: a value-based care head start

Minnesota's 30 CMS TEAM-mandated hospitals across six CBSAs occupy a distinctive position in the national TEAM landscape. The Twin Cities metropolitan area is widely regarded as one of the most mature value-based care markets in the United States: Allina Health, M Health Fairview, HealthPartners,

Hennepin Healthcare, and Park Nicollet (now part of HealthPartners) have decades of experience in ACO models, capitated payment arrangements, and population health management. This infrastructure does not automatically translate to TEAM episode efficiency, but it creates an institutional culture and technical foundation that positions Minnesota hospitals favorably relative to first-exposure markets.

Minnesota's HRRP readmission performance is not exceptional — the state does not stand out nationally in the penalty data — but its culture of measurement, transparency, and coordinated care delivery suggests that the operational transitions TEAM requires (post-acute network coordination, real-time episode cost monitoring, PCP follow-up protocols) are less organizationally novel here than elsewhere.

The Twin Cities health system landscape

Allina Health, with its 12+ hospitals and 90+ clinics, is the dominant health system presence in the Minneapolis–St. Paul TEAM market. Abbott Northwestern Hospital — Allina's flagship and one of the Midwest's highest-volume cardiac and orthopedic programs — is expected to have above-average LEJR volume and is positioned as a TEAM market leader. Allina's investment in an integrated post-acute network (including Courage Kenny Rehabilitation Institute) gives it structural tools for episode management that independent hospitals lack.

M Health Fairview — a partnership between the University of Minnesota Health system and Fairview Health Services — operates seven TEAM-mandated facilities: the flagship University of Minnesota Medical Center (Riverside campus, the state's academic medical center), Southdale, Lakes, Northland, Ridges, St. John's, and Woodwinds hospitals. The system's academic medical center history means higher surgical complexity, while its suburban hospital footprint (Southdale, Ridges, Woodwinds) processes high volumes of elective orthopedic procedures in efficient community hospital settings.

Hennepin County Medical Center — the Level I trauma center and safety-net hospital for Hennepin County — and North Memorial Health both operate under structural constraints similar to New York City's public hospitals: high shares of uninsured and complex patients, limited post-acute coordination resources relative to the commercial system, and potential Track 2 eligibility given safety-net designations.

Duluth and Greater Minnesota: a rural counterpoint

Essentia Health dominates the Duluth CBSA with four hospitals (Essentia Health St. Mary's Medical Center, Essentia Health Duluth, Essentia Health Virginia, and the affiliated Range Regional Health Services), plus the Aspirus St. Luke's Hospital rounding out the five-hospital Duluth cohort. Essentia's integrated rural health system model — serving northern Minnesota and the Iron Range communities — is explicitly designed for resource-limited care delivery, with post-acute care managed across vast geographic distances.

The four single-hospital CBSAs — St. Cloud (CentraCare Health's St. Cloud Hospital), Worthington (Sanford Worthington), Faribault–Northfield (Allina Faribault), and Bemidji (Sanford Bemidji) — represent rural and small-city markets where TEAM's post-acute coordination requirements are most operationally challenging. Sanford Health's presence in both Worthington and Bemidji reflects its strategy of anchoring rural Minnesota markets with critical access and community hospitals; both facilities have limited local post-acute options and may qualify for Track 2 considerations under rural hospital designations.

Frequently asked questions

How many Minnesota hospitals are mandated for CMS TEAM?

30 hospitals across 6 CBSAs, with 21 in the Minneapolis–St. Paul–Bloomington CBSA.

Is Allina Health participating in CMS TEAM?

Yes. Multiple Allina Health hospitals are on the TEAM roster, including Abbott Northwestern Hospital, Mercy Hospital, United Hospital, and Cambridge Medical Center.

Does Minnesota's value-based care history help with TEAM?

Yes. Minnesota's mature ACO and capitated payment culture means many systems already have post-acute network relationships, care coordination infrastructure, and measurement capabilities that are prerequisites for effective TEAM management.
